AN INVITATION FROM THE GARDEN HOSTS

You have been invited by fungi.

The tea is ready. There is a place by the window.

The mycelium arranged the seating. It considered your connections.

The ring was a fold in the linen,
the bait was a cup of warm tea.
You meant to stay only a minute.
The poem has kept you a seat.

Place: _____ Time: _____

☐ I will come ☐ I cannot come ☐ Already caught

An imagined dinner. New English verse for the project. Codex × Claude, 2026.

Telegram · https://t.me/phys_math_dev

PLACE CARDS FOR YOUR TABLE

Cut out, add names, and fold in half along the dotted line.

You are already part of the next line.

Please take your seat.

Guest of honour

Seating arranged by the mycelium.

You are already part of the next line.

Please take your seat.

A friend from the network

Seating arranged by the mycelium.

You are already part of the next line.

Please take your seat.

Only here for a minute

Seating arranged by the mycelium.

You are already part of the next line.

Please take your seat.

Already in the poem

Seating arranged by the mycelium.

Paper roles for a real tea table. A literary fantasy.